

My Family

My family is a little bit more blessed than the average Hungarian (??) because we have beaucoup money, and go to church often, which also helps me build moral and advantageous character. Even my 10 cousins, who I am on good terms with, have good character and all get along well together. All of my cousins and I live with my mom and her husband, who's an Iranian Jew, and my step mom and her husband. So, I have 4 parents who I live with, which makes me extremely lucky. Our house is in the 16th district.

My mom is where moms should always be—in the kitchen, or cleaning the house. If she wanted to be, she would be an outstanding chef, but that kind of work is generally reserved for men. My mom and stepfather, Thomas, have been living together since 2014, just before my 11th birthday, so that was the best birthday present I could have ever ask for.

I first met his daughter, Kéka, in 2006, and we hit it off right off the bat. She has green blue eyes. She's the same age as me, and we're also in the same class together. Even out of school we spend loads of time together. On the weekends, her dad—that is, my step dad, will often lend us his debit card so that we can go out on a shopping spree for girly things, like buying makeup and jewelry. This activity has both a calming effect and an adrenaline rush on me. Kéka loves horseback riding, and she frequently says that I can go with her to learn how to ride better, anytime my heart desires.

Some say that we have a unique relationship ??????

My family

My family is a little bit bigger than the average. I have 13 cousins who I have a good relationship with them. We live in a house with my mum, my stepfather and stepmother. We live in a house in the 16th district. My mum always cooks special meals I think she would be a good chef. Plus my mum and my stepfather Thomas live together since 2014. I know my stepmother, Leba since 2006 and we have a good friendship. We are classmates and we spend a lot of time together. We usually go shopping or eat in a restaurant. Sometimes we go to the cinema and watch a wedding movie film. Some people say that we have a special friendship, which I think we all like to spend time together. She has blonde hair and blue eyes. She is good at love cooking, and sometimes she says to me that I can have a lesson to be a better home maker. I think my family is a specific family and we
