

The Puppet Master Part 3

Last night almost 3 million people watched this broadcast to find out about George Soros. Last night we introduced you to the Puppet Master, billionaire, financier, George Soros. Notorious for collapsing economies and regimes all around the world. He's known as the Man Who Broke the Bank of England. The Prime Minister of Malaysia called Soros an "unscrupulous profiteer." In Thailand he was branded the "Economic War Criminal." They also said "he sucks the blood from people." In 1994, George Soros stated, "Just right that the former Soviet Empire is now called the Soros Empire." Combine these credits with his power, along with his financial fortune, it is no wonder that he fancies himself some sort of God. That's not something that we have said, that is something that he claims. He has described himself over and over again as some sort of God, even as the conscience of the world. "Yes, I did say that, and actually, I stand by it." "I think the world very much needs a conscience, and I want my foundation network to be the conscience of the world."

Ok, he wants it to be the conscience of the world. Well, he's a very, very generous man. Most people in the world know him as a philanthropist. Huge charity guy. Well, we'll look into that charity tonight. He gets a kick out of playing god, it's actually amusing to him. He says, in his own words, "It's a game." Unfortunately, what Mr. Soros forgets is these are real people. This is not some game. Real lives are being destroyed for his financial gain, and for his power.

I'm called a hate monger because I have conservative views, and positions, like, I don't know, "let people keep their money." But let me tell you this, it takes a cold, cold heart to have full knowledge that what you are doing, to make a buck is literally destroying the lives of people, and now he's messing with your life. He says, in his own words, America is his next target. "I became concerned with the problems of globalization where you have global markets, but you have politics based on the sovereignty of states. So how do you deal with that issue, and then I came to the realization that open society is in danger by our current leadership in this country, and that is when, we, I focused my attention on the United States. He has focused his attention.

This isn't a hypothesis, this has been proven. This is what this man does. He has done it before, and now he wants an orderly decline of the dollar—his words, not mine. If you thought 4 dollar a gallon for gas is painful, wait until Soros devalues your dollar even more. Forget about driving, how about about eating? We've told you just recently, I've told you this for, what two years now?-- that they'd devalue the dollar and inflation would come. Financial Times reported it today that it's about to be added to your grocery bill, and if you're the one in your household doing the grocery shopping then you've already seen it, but Oh, you 'aint seen nothing yet, as they "devalue our dollar in orderly decline." You'll start to see prices, like one inflation group predicted that it'll soon cost eleven dollars and forty-three cents for one ear of corn, one ear. How about going to the grocery store and seeing a price tag on a loaf of wheat bread of twenty-three dollars and five cents. This sugar, this size, thirty-two ounces of sugar, sixty-two dollars and twenty-one cents. For the milk, good old soy milk, who'd—smooth and delicious, twenty-four dollars and thirty-one cents for this size. For a container of this coffee, Folgers, eleven and a half ounces, seventy-seven dollars and seventy-one cents. For a container of orange juice, not this size, but for 64 fluid ounces, minute-made orange juice, they're now saying that it'll be forty-five dollars and seventy-one cents. Even I couldn't believe it. We called the experts and asked them, please tell me that this institute on inflation is nuts. No, no, they're not, unfortunately.

I couldn't believe that one candy bar, one Hershey's Milk Chocolate candy bar, one and a half ounces, Hershey's Milk Chocolate, fifteen dollars and fifty cents. This, Mr. Soros, is not a game. At least not for the schlubs outside of your world. I don't know anybody inside the world of George Soros, well, you've got Timothy Geithner (economic policy maker and central banker involved in scandals), you have Ben Bernanke (Chairman of the Federal Reserve), you have most of the politicians in Washington. We are the ones who are going to risk in this game when he manages the decline of our dollar (5:26), him and his minions up in Washington, who do you think pays the price? Will it be him, or will it be you? You see, he knows what's coming, and because of that, he can hedge, he knows exactly where to go. He knows where the exits are, and he's done it over and over again. He will gain profit and power, and you will lose both.

He's playing god, which is fine by him, because he's an atheist, so there has to be a god who's going to fill that void? Well, he's smart enough to do it. In one transcript he said that he was benevolent just like God, he sees the future just like God, so what does God's bible preach? Globalization! "Open Society is a desirable form of social organization, both as a means to an end, and as an end, itself." That, by the way, is a replacement of the republic, an open society.

This is not a leap of faith. I'm stating this as fact, and as I told you last night at glennbeck.com and theblaze.com, you'll find all of the facts, all of the research. Do not take my word for it, not one bit on this show, do not take my word for it, read about it yourself. Most of it comes in the form of his own words. Come over here for a second. These are, many of these are the books we used to prepare this show. And many of these books are written by him. This one, this one, this one. You can read about it. He's not shy about telling you. I mean God wrote a book too. He wrote three. Because of his own words, we know what to look for. We know the signs, we know what he's done in the past to bring down regimes. He's left a blueprint, a pattern of what to look for.

And now that Soros has turned his focus and set his sights on America, don't you think we should look at his past and see how he's done it before? What are the footprints? Where's he leaving fingerprints? How did he do it? 4 or 5 times before. Well, we also should look at what he's accomplished so far. How far down that line is he? Tonight we look at the Puppet Master's latest work of art, America under siege.

Alright, George Soros has his sights on America. So how does he view us? Well, it's easy. He views us like this. America is the main obstacle to a stable and just world order—the United States. "The main obstacle to a stable and just world order is the United States." His words, not mine. So not only does he want to bring America to her knees financially, he wants to reap obscene profits off us, as well, like when he made one billion dollars off of the collapse of the British Sterling—his claim, not mine.

"The money that I made on this particular transaction—the estimate is about a billion dollars. You are the guy who they said, who broke the Bank of England. "Right." And did. "Well, that's true." He's just a lovable, old spooky dude. By the way, his people, when they met with my number 2 in a story that I told last night, remember left us this threat, I mean this gift. He says he didn't really make that much off it. Was he lying then, or is he lying now? Which is it?

This man causes misery in his wake. People's lives were ruined. Retirement accounts, savings, jobs—all gone. Gramma and Grampa save their whole life—gone. And he just walks away. You've saved your whole life if you've put away for retirement, it's now worth 30 percent less in the last 10 years, and it's about to be worth a lot less. What are you gonna do? Go back and get another job? You see, he doesn't think about that stuff, because your life is a game to this man. And again, listen to George Soros in his own words.

(George Soros; October 2004) "When you try to improve society, you affect different people, and different interests differently, and they can not actually can be measured, so you very often have all kinds of unintended adverse consequences. So I had to experiment, and it was a learning process. The first part was this subversive activity, disrupting dictatorship regimes. That was a lot of fun, and that was the aim of this whole enterprise."

That was a lot of fun. Experimenting with people's lives. This is what happens when people put themselves in an elite category, or appoint themselves rulers. Or in his case sees himself as some sort of a god. You become a play thing and he is the all knowing, all seeing creator. He has been playing this game for a very long time, but before I show you how he's playing it now, and what is coming, I want to start in Czechoslovakia.

Half a century ago in Czechoslovakia, it was a scary, scary time to live in this part of the world. The world was changing. Europe was on fire: joblessness, hunger. Hunger was on the rise. People didn't know what to do. Protesters started rioting in the streets. The average person was frightened out of their mind, and so what did they do? They begged the government—please bring order! Stop the people rioting in the streets. Well, they did. And the next thing the average person knew was they were a communist country. It is important to remember this story because that is what history books will tell you.

But there's now new documents out that were never suppose to be released, and it plays directly into today, and what's happening in America, and we'll get to that at the bottom of the hour. But right now I want to show you the signs. What is George Soros trying to do? What is it? How does he do it? After country, after country, after country, we've found that there are 5 steps to him gainig control. He does it over and over and over again. So let's see what the steps are, and let's see if he's done any of them here.

The first one is form a Shadow Government using humanitarian aid as cover (subversive activities). This is what he just said. It's kinda funny. It's kinda fun. The first step, he said, is subversive activities. Step 2. Control the airwaves. Fund existing radio and tv outlets and take control over them, or start your own outlets. Remember, take control of existing, or start your own. Step 3. Destabilize the state, weaken the government, and build an anti-government kind of feeling in the country. You exploit an economic crisis, or take advantage of an existing crisis. Pressure from the top, and the bottom. This will allow you to weaken the government and build anti-government public sentiment. Step 4. You provoke an election crisis. You wait for an election, and during the election, you cry voter fraud. Step 5. Take power. You stage massive demonstrations: civil disobedience, sit-ins, general strikes, you encourage activism. You promote voter fraud, tell voters what to do through your radio and television stations. Well, let's start in the beginning, shall we?

Do any of those sound familiar? This is the way George Soros takes a country down, everytime— everytime. Again, he's done it, how many times Joe? 4 or 5? 4 times. 4 times before, we'll be number 5. So let's go back here. 5 steps to control.

The first one is form a shadow government using humanitarian aid as a cover. Hmm, now is he doing this? Well, let me start with the central George Soros operation, which is OSI. This is his main group. OSI, it is the Open Society Institute. It sounds warm and fuzzy, and to hear the way they tell it, it is warm and fuzzy. Oddly enough, yesterday, in a sign of, I think, total panick and collapse, OSI released a video talking about all of the wonderful things George Soros does. It's fantastic. It must have cost him a fortune to put this up. Coincidentally, it's released the day we do our special, to show you he's just a loveable old philanthropist. That's all he does. He cares about people. Well, I'm sure he does. I'm sure he does, because he's even humanitarian. He's a philanthropist, you know. He gives tons of money. I'll show you that whole thing at the end of the show.
