

The Puppet Master Part 6

Welcome to the Glenn Beck program. Tonight, Part 3 in our 3 part series on the Puppet Master George Soros. Last night, you saw the sheer size of this one man's influence. It is breathtaking. He has brought entire regimes and currencies down to the ground in flames. If you don't understand where America is heading, you will after tonight, and if you think it doesn't matter, well this is the wrong show for you. I want you to know, and remember this, in these last three episodes, I'm not making claims, I'm not asking questions, I'm not telling you statements of facts, what I'm telling you..watch George Soros in his own words. Where is the country headed? George Soros...

"The question is whether we need, and whether Mr. Soros and his foundations can help to bring more foreign influence into the United States, instead of relying on what is essentially a balance between Democrats and Conservative Republicans? I think you put your finger on a very important flaw in the current world order, and that is that only Americans have a vote in congress, and yet it is the United States that basically determines policy for the world. That is a flaw in the current setup.

It's a problem for him that people in China and France don't get to vote, find out who sits in congress. Is it for you? You need to make a choice. Mr. Soros has made his choice. I have made mine. Tonight, you decide.

Hello America, and happy Veteran's Day. Veterans and Marcus Luttrell, I'm thinking about you today. Thank you, for everything that you have done. Thank you, all of the spouses that struggle, and struggle hard for our freedom, for our freedom to be able to say the things that we mean, and we mean the things that we say for our freedom, for our freedom to be able to speak against, or speak about the most powerful people in the world, and not be crushed because you're the little guy. That's what America is about, to have a difference of opinion. And as George Washington said, "Meet on the battlefield of ideas." Tonight, part 3.

Part three on George Soros. I'm gonna recap, give you a little bit of new information here. I'm going to recap for the next 10 minutes and then I'm gonna ask you for your decision. These are the things you have to ponder. You have to..you can't just take my word for it. You have to decide. Am I going to look into this more on my own? Am I going to educate myself? Or am I just going to put my head back in the sand and say, "No, no, no, it's all fine, it's all fine, it's all fine?" 'Cause there is a choice. Who is George Soros? And is he involved in the changes in our country? And if he is, and if he is using his money to greatly influence our country, why don't I know about it? And do I agree with him? Maybe you do.

George Soros had a rough childhood. He was born in Hungary in 1930. Not the place you wanted to be in in 1930, especially if you were a Jew. His mother was wildly anti-semitic. Again, for anybody who's crying, "Oh, that's some sort of anti-semitic attack on George Soros." No, it's not. I'm not calling his mother an anti-semite, George Soros did. Those are his words, not mine. "My mother was quite anti-semitic and ashamed of being Jewish, given the culture in which one lived. Being Jewish was clear-cut stigma, disadvantage, a handicap, and therefore, there was always the desire to transcend it, to escape it. " That is pretty powerful in a child's life. Both of his parents were non-practicing Jews. His real family name was not Soros, it was Schwartz, but what would you do if you lived in Hungary in the 1930s and 40s. Would you keep the name Schwartz? When George was 6 years old, the family changed the name from Schwartz to Soros. Now, at first, it just makes sense on the surface, because you're just like, well they're trying to stay alive. There were madmen rounding Jews up. But when you look at the name Soros, it's an obscure name. What does it mean? Where did it come from? Well, it means 'to soar', but more importantly, it derives from Esperanto, which is a made-up trans-European language. It was started in I think the 1880s, and it was promoted by those who dreamt of a world free of nationalities. Get it? A world free of nationalities, an open society.

His father was very much into this. That's how they picked the name Soros. So when George Soros was 14, his father basically bribed a government official to take his son in and let him pretend to be a Christian. His father was just trying to keep him alive. He even had to go around confiscating the property of Jewish people. Now imagine, you are Jewish, and you have to go and confiscate the property of your fellow Jews, and you are pretending to not be a Jew, and if anyone finds out, your dead. He actually had to endure watching people sent off to their eventual murders. Watching people, gathering their stuff, sending them off, knowing that they were going to go to their death. What does that do to somebody? How do you deal with it? How many years of therapy would somebody need after something like that?

This is where George, I think this is important. I think this is when George Soros first learned to pretend to be something other than who he was. He had to. I am not blaming or questioning a 14 year old, or his parents for trying to keep him alive, trying to keep the family alive. I don't think anyone can understand what it must have been like to be Jewish in that scenario, can you? Especially 14. I don't want to question the 14 year old. I would like to question, however, the 80 year old man who has never once said he regretted it, but more than that, he views it as the happiest year of his life. Again, not my words, his words. Listen: "Actually, probably the happiest year of my life, that year of German occupation. For me, it was a very positive experience. It's a strange thing because you see incredible suffering around you, and in fact you are in considerable danger yourself, but you're 14 years old and you don't believe that it can actually touch you. You have a belief in yourself, a belief in your father. It's a very happy making, exhilarating experience."

I don't think I've ever heard anybody ever describing the holocaust years like that. Maybe he's the most healthy man you've ever met. Some how or another he just got through it. But he's also spoken about how his experience in Hungary has effected his psyche. Listen to this. Did anybody in Hungary tell you why they didn't like the Jews at the time? "Oh yes, and that of course is something that is very much a part of my psyche, anti-semitism, and you know, hatred of Jews, which was quite widespread within Hungary." Even to his own home.

I mean, I'd love to spend an hour with ... he's not going to come onto this program and spend an hour with me, and we'd have bigger fish to fry on this, but I would love to understand how it effected his psyche, having his mother basically agree, apparently—I don't mean to judge, with the hatred of Jews being anti-semitic in his own home. How has he navigated that? I'm not going to spend the time, I have invited George Soros to come on this program, he has declined. We have bigger fish to fry, like how does he view the world. But it sure would be interesting to explore how this effected his feelings on Israel, which he does not support. He donates so much money to organizations which speak out against Israel. Some stick out more than others on the donations, but is there any connection there? I'm going to concentrate on the fact that I think the lesson he learned on that horrific year of 1944 was if you hide your true identity, you can gain power, you can survive, and those who are seen disadvantaged or handicapped, and don't hide their identity, well they don't survive. The next formula step in Soros' life is college. Now this is where he attended the London School of Economics. Now, this is the same school that (Friedrich von) Hayek was from. He wrote "The Road to Serfdom." He's just a freedom fighter, but it's also the school where the Fabian Socialists hung out, a Fabian Socialist University. Remember the window we told you about.

This is the famous English Fabian Society. We took this picture, Tony Blair was actually standing right here with it. Fabian Socialists. What are they doing? They're heating the world in the fire that they themselves are stoking. Why are they heating it up? Because they are about to hammer it and remold it nearer to the heart's desire. Fabian Socialists are the American Progressives. It's the same thing. Heat the world up. Cause the problems, so the world heats up so you can remold it. So which part of the school of economics does Soros favor? The Hayek side, or the Fabian side? Which one?

This is where he learned about an Open Society, the Open Society Institute, which is now his charitable arm. Sounds harmless on the outside, but really, I mean, who doesn't want to be open? But when you listen to him at the top of the hour, at the beginning of the program, you know that logo behind him, that was the Open Society Institute. Can your institute bring in more foreign influence here in America? What is an open society, really? Well, you saw him a moment ago. The world has a vote in congress, but you also saw it in his father. Soros, a world free of nationalities. It is a global replacement for our republic. For all the work our founders did, that's old news. We must progress past it. We must have a new world order. It is a replacement for the republic. He has donated more than 14 million dollars to a group here in America called the American Constitution Society. Well, that sounds great, except this is a progressive legal group with an area focused on constitutional interpretation and change. The constitution can be changed, but you do it not in the shadows, you do it not being invisible, you don't hide who you are, you change it through the amendment process, but he knows you wouldn't go for it.

So, he leaves school, leaves Hungary, he survives. He goes to school, he finds Open Society, and then he becomes wealthy. Well, how did he become wealthy enough to fund his quest to de-nationalize the world? Hedge funds. He has the estimated 5th largest hedge fund in the world. It's called the Quantum Fund, which George, sometime we should talk, we should kibitz about the name.

It's worth about 27 billion dollars. Now here's the interesting and funny thing about hedge funds. We hear all the time about the greedy Wall Street brokers. We hear about greedy speculators, greedy bankers, we hear about greedy executives and their obscene bonuses and their expensive carpets and everything else, but why don't we hear more about those greedy hedge fund managers? Is it a coincidence that everything under the sun that comes to capitalism is targeted for regulation by congress, except for hedge funds. You should decide on that one.

Now, he's got the wealth. Well, what did he do with the wealth? He decided to collapse regimes and currencies. He did it in England, in Russia, Malasia, Georgia. Soros lit the fuse to get it done. He's known as—we told you last night, "The man who broke the bank of England. " The Prime Minister of Malasia called Soros "unscrupulous profiteer. " In Tailand he was branded an "economic war criminal "... "sucks the blood from people. " In 1994 he stated, "Just write that the former Soviet Empire is now called the Soros Empire. "
